Louisa W. Turner. One volume 16mo.
TICKNOR & FIELDS, Boston.

"Contrast is one most important means of secting the truth; and this little work, which in a brief space contrasts many points of the New and Old doctrines together, is well calculated to be of service to the general reader, and also to the novitiate and the mature member of the Church. It has been presend by an American lady, who speaks from a wivid and enlightened perception of these 'points of difference."

BY LOW LIBRO, 432 pp. Price $1.25.

Beautifelly illustrated with 16 steel Portraits by Ritchie, and 12
Wood Engravings, from cosigns chiefly by Darley.
This work—undertaken with the sanction of the chief officers of the Post Office Department, by a gentleman who has long been and is still one of the Special Agents of that Department—is the first book of the kind ever issued exiculated to give the public an insight into the practical operations of the Post-Office Fatablishment, and the almost certain means which skill and experience have furnished for the detection and punishment of elenders against the laws enacted for the security of the mails and the invoice bility of private correspondence.

Never has a volume been offered to the public under a more hearty and universal or mineriation of that ealightened and powerful censor, the Freak Brief attracts from several of these flattering notices are annexed:

"The book will prove one of the most entertaining of the season; and in liveliness interest and general truth to necure, will form a pleasant addition to our stock of popular light literature.

"We are bound to concede to Mr. Holbrock's trartite of his Post-Office experiences, the merit of being an exceedingly interesting and suggestive book."

"The cutest and must entertaining book we have recently seen. Some of Mr. Holbrock's true, unvanished recitals beat all that one finds in Reynolds's monatructies; and any one who reads them will resilize at once that roundne still lives and thrives amid our modern life."

The tender sentiment of this poem reached the Elder's heart, as acknowledged in a feeling response. Shortly after the Widow retires to a grave, in the rear of Elder Sniflles's house, sits down on a log, and sings as follows:

cone to a grove, in the rear of E.der Shulles's house, sits down on a log, and sings as follows:

Ere love had teached my tears to flow.

I was ancommon cheerful,
But now ruch misery I do know,
I em alwa s and and feerful;
What pree-crub bours I once enjuyed,
All on a Sommer day!
But O, ny comforts were destroyed,
Vhen Sandiack trossed my way,
I heard him preach—I heard him pray—I heard him sweetly sing;
Dear Suz! how I did feel and day!
It was a dretfei thing!
Full forty dellars wound I give
If we'd continuered apart.
For the he' made my specifitive,
Ho's surely but my hart!!!
The Elder overhears the song, and yields.

FANNY GRAY.

A History of her Life, in a series of six beautiful Figures, from new and exquisite designs, printed in oil colors, in the best style of the art. With poetical descriptions.

"Messer, Crosby, Nichols & Co., Boston, have published a series of beautiful designs, printed in oil colors, with an accompanying story in verse, entitled. Fanny forsy, which give the biscopy of her life, which the exquisite figures are designed to illustrate. Little Fanny is presented in sax different characters; once she was a cottage girl and had a happy home, which looks very attractive in the picture; then fortune frowned and she tecame a wanderer and sold matches, till kind-hearted. Farmer Weston't took her home where she fed his chickens, and gathered the wild flowers from hill and moor, till in her character of flower-girl she is discovered by her rich uncle, who makes her his pet and a little lady; all of which may be tastefully shown by figures as the story proceeds. The whole is one of the neatest and most delightful gifes for children that we leave ever seen.

"It has been prepared with such thoroughness, judgment, and impartiality, that it will become at ones the standard history of Awerican Literature."

[Hoston Telegraph."

In all respects the work has been thoroughly and well dens.

"It will be regarded as one of the most valuable contributors of American Literature.

In all respects the work has been thoroughly and well done.

It will be regarded as one of the most valuable contributions to the historical department of our Letters that has been made in a long white.

It is, indeed, a Cyclopedia of American Literature and an American Biegraphica Dictionary combined.

It is indeed, a Cyclopedia of American Literature, a compaction of excepts from it in all its stages, he biography of almost all the leading men of our cuttry, and accounts of the rise, progress, and influence of our literary institutions. The result is a very valuable contribution to the lib any and the particular.

"The book has a stellar value to it, and its curious and rare material makes is a valuable accession to say library (Borton Pot Witzier, Carlotte and Carlotte Carlotte bave gathered from such a wide variety of sources."

"They have produced a work that is both invaluable for reference and interesting as a literary production. It is a grand monument erected to American mire."
